Most pregnancies progress smoothly, but if complications should arise at any time, Northwestern Medicine brings you the assurance of skilled care from highly trained specialists in maternal fetal medicine (MFM). Also called perinatologists, MFM specialists are board-certified obstetricians who are specially trained in diagnosing, treating and managing health concerns of mother and baby. From preconception to post delivery, you can count on your MFM team to deliver personalized, sophisticated high-risk care to support a healthy pregnancy and delivery.
