Purpose

This lecture-based symposium will stimulate front-line patient care providers to initiate and/or participate in interprofessional research and evidence-based practice activities which will enhance patient safety, clinical outcomes, and patient and caregiver satisfaction.

Program Content Objectives

- Explain the role healthcare professionals play in the advancement of social and political equality for transgender people.
- Identify opportunities to implement evidence-based practices that support transgender equality into daily healthcare practice.
- Discuss examples of research or evidence-based practice (EBP) projects conducted by Northwestern Medicine employees.

Learning Outcomes

- Participants report an increase in knowledge (>20%) of evidence-based practice (EBP) or research activities.
- Participants can identify (>80%) at least one research or EBP activity they could participate in/have a role within their clinical practice setting.
