Your rights

Northwestern Medicine is an integrated academic health system where the patient comes first. Our staff is dedicated to ensuring that each patient is treated with dignity and as an equal partner in care. We will care for you with skill, compassion and respect. You can help us make your healthcare experience safe by being an active, involved and informed partner with your healthcare team.

Northwestern Medicine is a community of caregivers who welcome, respect and serve all people without regard to age, race, color, national origin, religion, culture, language, physical or mental disability, socioeconomic status, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, and military or veteran status.

Northwestern Medicine is committed to inclusive care. We will provide free aids and services to patients and their companions with disabilities. If you or your companions want to communicate about your care in a language other than English, we will provide you with free and confidential language services.

As our patient, you have the right to:

Access

Receive appropriate medical care without discrimination

Contact and talk to the physicians involved in your care

Contact the Patient Relations Department if you have a complaint, without worry that doing so will cause retaliation

Access protective services

Respect and dignity

Be treated as an individual with unique needs and desires

Receive compassionate and respectful care free of unnecessary restraints or seclusion, and free from all forms of abuse and harassment

Have your medical information be kept confidential

Have your personal privacy respected

Make informed choices about your care and treatment, including the decision to refuse treatment

Complete an advance directive/living will and have your stated wishes become part of your treatment plan

Identify a decision-maker in the event you cannot participate in decisions about your care

Have your symptoms treated in the event of a life-limiting illness; we will work with you to prevent or manage pain and discomfort; it is important to us to support you and your family through concerns related to dying and grief

Coordination of care

Know who is in charge of your care

Know your physicians and other caregivers, and their roles in your care

Select a different outpatient physician as available

If you do not understand something, please ask. You have the right to know.

Physical comfort

Be cared for in a place that is healing, clean and safe

Receive a timely response to your pain with the goal of helping you understand and follow your care plan

Emotional support

State your concerns, be heard and get an appropriate response without worry that doing so will cause retaliation

Have your spiritual needs respected

Information, education and communication

Talk to your care team, and understand and ask questions about your diagnosis, treatment, care plan and discharge

Read carefully and make sure you understand any form before signing

Be given complete and current information about your condition, course of treatments and outcomes of care in a manner that you can understand

Know the potential risks and benefits of procedures and treatments

Get an itemized bill and an explanation of charges in a manner that you can understand

Get a copy of your medical record. Your nurse can help you, or you can contact the Medical Records Department after you leave the hospital.

Get effective communication through a certified medical interpreter at no cost to you. If you or a companion are deaf or hard of hearing, we will give you support aids, including TTYs, television closed captioning and writing supplies. All language assistance services are free and confidential. Please tell a staff member if you need help with communication.

Know about any proposed clinical trials (research) affecting your care or treatment. You have the right to refuse to take part in such research, and if you do refuse, this will not affect your access to ongoing care.

A Medical Ethics consultation to help you explore options and issues in making healthcare decisions

Involvement of family and friends

Have a family member, family physician or friend notified of your admission

Involve family members and friends in your care when it is safe and possible

Transition and continuity of care

Have access to people outside the hospital, whether in-person visitors, verbal or written contact, or private phone conversations, as appropriate to the clinical setting

Get continuous and consistent care in our hospitals

These things in relation to pregnancy and childbirth

Northwestern Medicine adheres to the Rights of Women With Regard to Pregnancy and Childbirth Illinois statute of 2020. To see a full list of rights, please visit dph.illinois.gov and search for Public Act 101-0445.

Patients have these rights related to pregnancy and childbirth:

The right to receive health care before, during and after pregnancy and childbirth

The right to choose a certified nurse midwife or physician as your maternity care professional

The right to choose your birth setting from the full range of birthing options available in your community

The right to leave your maternity care professional and select another if you are not satisfied with your care, except as otherwise provided by law

The right to emotional and physical support during labor and birth

The right to freedom of movement during labor and to give birth in the position of your choice, within generally accepted medical standards

The right to have contact with your newborn, except when we must provide necessary care to you or your infant

The right to get information about breastfeeding

The right to decide collaboratively with your care team when you and your baby will leave the birth site for home, based on your condition and circumstances

Access nurse staffing and staff training information

You have a right to access nurse staffing and staff training information. You may ask for this information from any clinical director, nursing supervisor or the Patient Care Services staffing office.

Your responsibilities

As we partner with you for your care, we ask that you:

Give us complete and accurate information about your current and past state of health, including past illnesses, hospital stays and the medications you are taking

Give us a copy of your advance directives, such as a living will and/or healthcare power of attorney, so that we can honor your choices

Talk to us about your pain and options for minimizing it

Follow the treatment plan that you developed with your caregivers, including a safe escort home after a procedure, and accept responsibility for your health outcome if you choose not to follow your treatment plan

Ask questions when you do not understand what we are saying or asking you to do

Treat staff members with courtesy and respect

Show respect and consideration for your caregivers and other patients and families by helping us keep a peaceful environment of care, not smoking, and respecting others' property

Respect that we do not tolerate discrimination toward patients, visitors or healthcare workers on the basis of race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, culture, religious identity, age, disability or any other protected class of persons in keeping with federal and state laws

Tell us if you think there may be a problem with your care, or if you do not agree with the treatment plan

Help us ensure a safe environment by letting us know if you see unsafe conditions or practices

Leave valuables at home and bring only necessary items for your hospital stay (we are not responsible for lost valuables)

Meet all financial obligations you have agreed to related to your care

For your safety

You may not bring certain items inside hospital facilities. These items include, but are not limited to, alcohol, tobacco products, weapons, and any substances that are illegal under state or federal law. Note: Marijuana can be legally purchased in Illinois. However, due to federal regulations, you may not bring marijuana to Northwestern Medicine hospital facilities.

We respect your privacy. However, if we believe you, another patient or a staff member is in danger, we reserve the right to search your belongings and room. We may also search your visitors and their possessions. If possible, we will let you know before we do any search. We will make every effort to do the search in a respectful way and while you are present.

We will not allow people to act in a way that causes fear or harm, including the use of profanity, physical violence, threats, intruding on other patients and sexual aggression. We will ask visitors who act this way to leave the hospital. We will ask patients who act this way to leave the hospital after we have delivered necessary care.

If you have concerns

All patients have the right to formally express their concerns about the quality of care, language assistance services or premature discharge. We have a process to promptly review and address patient complaints. Please share your concerns with Patient Relations and your care team so that they can find a solution. You or your representative may also contact Patient Relations to let us know of your concerns or to file a grievance.
