How to Join a Video Visit With a Medical Professional

To help you access better care when and where it is most convenient for you, Northwestern Medicine offers video visits.

You will get a video visit invitation by email, text message or both. You can join the video visit using a mobile device like a smartphone or tablet, or you can join from a computer. Instructions for both options are outlined below.

Your medical professional’s office will send the link to your video visit. It may come as soon as 15 minutes before your visit is scheduled. Your medical professional always tries to be on time. However, just like an office visit, they may have a delay. The link to the visit may come after the appointment time. Thank you for your patience.
