AUGUST 21 2021

in the 3 months I've been under his care I've seen him for a maximum of 5 minutes. No way to get a call through to him

AUGUST 19 2021

I don't think his team did a great job explaining nor the discharge was explained thoroughly. Was a bit disappointed. Surgery was a success though. I felt now being rushed not really cared for enough.

AUGUST 9 2021

Have been seeing Dr. Walsh for over a year, he is very personable and I felt very comfortable with him from the very first day and his diagnosis of me. He always answered my questions and addressed my fears honestly. After a year of delaying the surgery the day came and I could not be happier with the results. This doctor says what he does and does what he says. I not only would but already have recommended him to several people and will keep recommending him. Very thankful every day for being referred to Dr. Walsh.

SEPTEMBER 29 2020

Neurosurgeons have a stereotypical reputation in chronic pain communities as ego-driven gods. Dr. Walsh does not fit the stereotype whatsoever. He is friendly, attentive, knowledgeable, concerned, and most of all, a patient himself as he explained. That in itself speaks a thousand words. He can relate to his patients. I have a complex case, which can overwhelm experienced physicians. Dr. Walsh acknowledged the challenges my case brings but did not slight me at all. He listened. I felt heard. Dr. Walsh put me at ease. He created a plan for me, which includes more specialists to try a conservative approach rather than rush into the operating room. In my opinion, that is the sign of a good surgeon.

SEPTEMBER 29 2020

My experience was exceptional. Amanda, PA-C took a thorough history, listened, heard me as a patient, answered many questions, addressed my concerns, and explained my test results. She put me at ease. I'm also thrilled there is a woman PA-C in neurosurgery!

SEPTEMBER 28 2020

SEPTEMBER 25 2020

I have been dealing with back pain for about 3 years and I could not find any doctor near my house that would even talk about doing my surgery. Dr. Walsh agreed that I do need the surgery and he made me feel very comfortable about having it done by him. Laura is also very helpful and informative and treated me very professionally. I would recommend this team to all of my friends and family.
